WASHINGTON CITY.

What the Next Congress Proposes to do

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15—A Washington special says among the important questions bound to occupy a considerable share of the attention of the Democratic majority of representatives is the status of the national banks. An examination of the official record of [illegible] since the war shows in the last ten years a wholly small proportion of Democratic votes have been cast on any question affecting the national banks, which could by implication even be construed as favoring the national bank system in any respect. There is scarcely a leading Democrat in the country, in or out of congress who has not taken occasion to denounce the monopoly. Such men as Senator Thurman and Representative Kerr have never remitted in their efforts to remove the restrictions on state banks This opposition to the national banking system does not involve at all the question of inflation for upon it both hard and soft money Democrats are very generally united It is expected before many weeks of the next session will be passed an onset on the national banks will be actively inaugurated in the house and the best informed politicians here expect opposition to national banks made a leading feature of the next Democratic congress. Whatever adverse legislation to the banks may be taken would as a matter of course be entirely inoperative with a Republican president and a Republican senate, but assume in power. In addition to this it is not certain even if the Democrats had entire possession of the government, whether they would agree on which would have to follow necessarily in the wiping out of the present system. The soft money Democrats have always pressed for the substitution of greenbacks for national bank notes. The hard money Democrats are willing to compel the banks to withdraw their issues but they are inflexibly opposed to any further issues of greenbacks. So far as taking away the privilege of issuing notes is concerned, it is a question whether the banks will care very much about it but the rag money people will certainly hold on to the bank notes if they cannot get greenbacks for them The great probability is that the national banks will even in the event of a Democratic success not be materially interfered with, at least for a long time to come They do not appear to be satisfied with this but which their influence and money is always arrayed against Democratic candidates as much in the east as the west If the bank circulation were entirely withdrawn the whole labor of resumption would fall on the government.

The Walla Walla Statesman says Nature never has been observed to be more bountiful to her children than she has been to the farmers of this section of Washington Territory, and what they have realized from their labors this season is the result of a bountiful harvest, and a fair market for their products. Wheat is the principal crop raised in this section, and the yield per acre has been unusually large, and the quality of the grain is unsurpassed. Many farmers have realized from 40 to 50 bushels per acre, and the average yield will be about 30 bushels per acre. The crop is all harvested, and the greater portion of it has been sold at prices ranging from 90 cents to $1 per bushel. Many farmers have sold their crops at the latter figure, and have realized handsomely from their labors. Those who have not sold their crops are holding for $1 per bushel, and will probably realize that figure. Many farmers have sold their crops at 90 cents per bushel, and have realized handsomely from their labors. A CONTRAST

[From the Yamhill Reporter]

We cannot but notice the unfairness with which the opposition press are treating Mr Warren on every point which they have dealt during the campaign and the difference between their style and that of their opponents is also noteworthy When Mr Lane first took the rostrum in Southern Oregon it was currently bruited for some days that he was dodging the school question" and the majority of newspapers favoring Mr Warren took up the word and passed it around for what it was worth until Mr Lane stated his position in such plain terms as to leave no doubt that the story of his equivocation on the subject of public schools was an error At this point those journals who have a just regard for fair dealing gave Mr Lane the benefit of his statement by promptly correcting the misstatement they had helped to give publicity and to-day that gentleman hears no word of censure so far as he is concerned, on the public school question Those who opened the fire humanely silenced their guns when the suspicious craft showed its colors," and we think it is a mark of merit to be placed to the credit of those who did so Justice to whom justice is due, is just and right, and "will win in the long run," although it may be compelled to succumb to many unjust expedients that may spring up along its pathway as it glides on in its straightforward career

In contradistinction to the course mentioned above let us see how it is on the other side of the question Among the other absurd charges the Democratic journals have brought against Mr Warren, they have suddenly dropped on" a hobby to the effect that that gentleman has been guilty of diverting the public school fund of this district to the benefit of the Baptist college We have heretofore shown the absurdity of such a thing and its impossibility, but such advice goes unheeded and they still go on repeating the falsehood with all the pathos and bathos at their command as if they were the pariah thropists to shield the world from a direful calamity At the same time they know they are playing the hypocrite, they know they are straining to build themselves on a falsehood, and yet not one of them has the honor or fairness to come out and [illegible] corrections let alone correcting the false statements he has made

OREGON

Frank McMillen, of Forest Grove returned the other day from a trapping excursion of a month, bringing $200 worth of furs

Large quantities of wheat are shipping from Forest Grove by the railway It is estimated that 75 000 bushels will be shipped from that point during the season

The tax levy of Coos county is 23 mills on the dollar The total valuation of all property in the county is $1,503 882 from which are to be deducted exemptions, $138,511 and indebtedness $250 648

The saloon at Dilley blooms no more red noses says the Independent That institution closed out some time since and one of the proprietors has become an honest clerk in one of the village dry goods stores.

The small pox scare at Forest Grove seems to have subsided, and the patient ever whose case the riot" occurred is recovering Those pupils who remained away from school on account of the scare are returning

The Commercial Flouring Mills at McMinnville have commenced running The proprietors are paying 8¢ Jos prices for wheat and are getting a large amount. They have already about 20 000 bushels stored at the mill

The Independent says the average of grain per acre about Tualatin falls considerably below the average of other seasons Oats not only yield a less number of bushels but they are light poorly filled occasioned by the long dry summer The fruit and potato crops are also short this season

The Mercury says A carriage containing Charley Holman Mrs Holbert and sister, and Mrs Reed left the fair grounds on Thursday evening to return to Salem, and in passing the railroad crossing the team was crowded off the track and the carriage upset, seriously frightening everybody concerned in the affair and bruising Mrs Holbert on the back of the head and slightly injuring the baby

Mr. McDaniels and Miss Annie Curl coming from the state fair on Wednesday, met with a serious accident In passing over a rough piece of road the team became frightened and shied in such a manner as to run the buggy in a ditch and throw him to the ground Miss Curl jumped to the ground dislocating her ankle and breaking the instep bone

The grand jury of Yamhill county make this report on the condition of the county jail We have also examined into the condition of the so called county jail and have to report that in fact there is no proper jail in this county there certainly is an iron pen or cage 6 by 9 feet wherein men awaiting trial are confined the pen is altogether unfit for the purpose for which it is used, being entirely too small There is not sufficient room for two men at one time but sometimes four are thrust into it thereby making the cage by reason of overcrowding extremely liable to engender disease and perhaps death among the occupants The present system of keeping prisoners in this county is not only attended with considerable unnecessary expense but is unhuman and a disgrace to any civilized community and ought to be condemned forthwith and a good substantial and proper jail be built for the safe keeping and comfort of prisoners

STATE FAIR

Fifteenth Annual Fair of the Oregon State Agricultural Society.

Fifth Day.

FAIR GROUNDS
SALEM Oct 15 1875

What a success! exclaimed our fair companion and enthusiastic secretary of the society, as he rubbed his hands together with ecstatic joy on greeting a gentleman this morning Such is a fact Never since the organization of the society has there been such an attendance and the same remark will hold good in regard to the extensiveness of varieties and number of entries The committees are about through, especially in the stock department When the hour of examination of horses at the arena was announced, an immense crowd attended, and the universal judgment was that the display was good

The weather is propitious, the crowd in good humor and all are awaiting the three events of the day, viz horse race, base ball contest and baby show The latter deeply interests quite a number of young mothers, who evidently think that each particular one is the possessor of the prettiest little cherub in this or any other country The entries for the great race of the week have been made and the hour will have arrived there will be the largest crowd that has ever gathered together here

Some excitement was created this morning by the appearance of a monstrosity on the streets of the ground, who was being wheeled around in a wagon and a gentleman entered complaint to the officers of the society, as being dangerous to a portion of the community It is to be hoped that the society will pass laws if they have not already, prohibiting such unsightly humans from being forced into notice upon those to whom it may be very repugnant

There was a strange rumor going the rounds yesterday to the effect that during the week two small babes have lost their lives by their mothers taking them into one of the many swings that are whirling eternally on the grounds I do not know whether that would cause death or not but I do know, from my own experience, that they make me sick similar to the plunging of the old steamer Columbia, that I distinctly remember of

A lively runaway occurred yesterday and the horse converted a very nice buggy into kindling wood by trying to pass through a swing while it was in motion, and a bystander said that he was not aware that ladies could get out of the way of approaching danger with the agility that they displayed on that occasion

J S Hathaway best sample of sugar beets 1st and 2d premiums

E Scott took a premium for table carrots.

Mr J S Hathaway has taken the following premiums Best five acres of spring wheat 1st premium, best five acres of oats, 1st premium, best five acres of fall wheat 1st premium

E Condit, best bushel of shelled corn, Kings Phillip variety 2d premium

S Condit, best bushel of buckwheat, 1st premium

H Morse, best bushel of oats 1st premium

Mr Thomas Pearce has been awarded the following premiums Best bushel of oats of any variety 2d premium best bushel of spring barley 2d premium

W Hearford, best surprise oats, 2d premium

J H Robbins, best bushel of surprise oats 1st premium

HOPS

Mr J W Futtle has on exhibition a bale of hops weighing some three hundred pounds that he raised at Springfield, Lane county and is one of the pioneers of that portion of the country, and has been awarded the first premium He also has some in the various grades of preparation and some in natural state, showing the size of the hop while on the vine The yard is three years old and is doing remarkably well showing that that portion of the country is well adapted, both in soil and climate, for the growth and proper maturity of this important agricultural product He contemplates sending a bale by Mr Dufur, to the states

Mrs M Heugle received the second premium for hops

VEGETABLES

The display of vegetables this year is far superior to that of any year heretofore, and among those who have attended and always brought vegetables to exhibit is Mr. I J Pipe boy of Vancouver W T and certainly will carry off some of the premiums He has very large cabbages beets potatoes carrots and in fact all the vegetables that the country can produce are here well represented of potatoes I counted thirteen varieties As for onions they are simply immense one specimen measuring 74 inches in diameter and the yellow Danver seems to be the favorite variety Tomatoes of all varieties can be seen here, both large and small

Miss Annie M Smith has a beautiful red pepper bush fixed up as a house plant and covered with large fine red pepper pods which set off the pot in fine style

W C Duncan has on exhibition several of the largest watermelons they are the largest that we have even seen grown in the State.

W H Adair has taken the premium for exhibiting the largest squash It is not comparable to some shown last year.

PRESERVED FRUITS

The Alden Fruit Preserving Company of McMinnville have on exhibition a very good selection It is not arrayed with the taste that the other companies of that process have displayed but if there were no other entrees made or exhibited the display would attract attention or interest. As far as arranging preserved fruits without regard to exposure and extensive variety the Oregon City Company stands ahead, but unfortunately all the fruit is covered with glass and cannot be tested as to its merits of retaining the natural flavor that is claimed for the process This company have also a number of jars or bottles filled with fruit and vegetables sacked ready for cooking showing to the people the appearance of the fruit when it is ready for cooking There are also numerous varieties of vegetables and meats showing that they can be preserved as well as fruit

The Albany Company has not a very extensive variety, in fact not as much as should have been

The Salem Preserving Company has a large and very superb collection, but were not packed in ten pound, packages and decorated with scalloped paper of various hues and the fruit protected by glass As far as the real merits of the products and natural color of the fruit is concerned, the Salem company has the best collection, but they are packed in all the different size boxes that the company sells from the factory.

The contest for the gold medal was warmly contested, and really rested between the Oregon City and Salem companies, but the Clackamas Company [illegible] the coveted prize

The California fruit dryer modestly but persistently asserts its presence by a very good display of its products, and in fact in some of the fruits it will compare well with the Alden process The yard of the machine has one of them in operation near the pavilion, and has awakened a great amount of interest, judging from the crowd that is constantly around from early morn till dewy eve But there is one undeniable fact, that the display of preserved fruit this year is far superior to any that has ever been exhibited before, and will demonstrate to the many thousands that have examined the fruit that a way has been discovered at last to preserve the great quantity of fruit that has been allowed to go to waste every year, and at the same time be a source of revenue It is predicted, and by men who are good judges of the subject, that within ten years the fruit of Oregon will be as valuable to this state as the wheat crop is at the present time, especially when the old orchards will have been revived and young orchards set out and taken care of as they should be The time is coming, and is 'almost here" when preserving establishments will be found in every neighborhood, and thousands of acres of upland now considered almost worthless, will be redeemed and grow the finest fruit that this state is capable of producing.

Mr W C Myer, the importer and breeder of the

PERCHERON HORSES

And Jersey cattle, was so busy he was unable to give the information that was desirable as I passed among the horses the other day Mr. Myer resides at Ashland, Jackson county, and has just sold seven head of Percheron horses, mares and colts to Messrs Bonney & Jones of Tygh valley, Wasco county, as follows General Mural, full blood, horse colt, one year old last May, weighing 1,300 pounds; Perchay, three-fourths, from Ohio, weighs 1,600 pounds, Eugene, foaled in May last, seven-eighths blood, weighs 1,600 pounds; Bismarck, three years old one-half blooded horse; three half blooded fillies, one from Mollie Sligart, imported from Ohio in 1866 Her sire, Capt Sligart, weighs 1,400 pounds The above animals are out at Ashland, and were purchased without being seen by the purchasers, but having purchased one of the said blooded colts last season in the same way, giving perfect satisfaction, which speaks well for Mr Myer as a breeder The above lot of stock will be a valuable acquisition to Wasco county and the stock men can have an opportunity to greatly improve their stock

THE ARENA

Thoroughbreds—There were only two entries The first premium horse was a stallion named Luther, owned by Wm Bigham, Fo James Redwood was awarded the second premium for stallion

Two year Olds—Five entries first premium awarded to Noah Gorham, of Douglas county a Percheron colt, sired by White Prince. He is a splendid animal Second premium awarded to C P Bacon, of Portland His was a fine animal

Yearling Colts—There were only two entries, the first premium was awarded to P M Rinearson, for a sorrel gelding The second premium to Wm Thompson, Washington county for a Pathfinder colt

Brood Mares and Colts—First premium to J A Wiser, Clackamas county Second premium, John Dorning,

Mares of all Work—Seven entries, first premium, H H Cole, Lane county, second premium, A P Newton, Benton county

THE RACE

Wm Bigham, Foster by Lexington, D J Baskett Napa by Norfolk, Chris Buckley, Twenty One by Norfolk. Twenty One pole, Napa 2d, Foster 3d

First heat—At the first call Foster and Napa broke away and ran to the quarter post before they could be checked, and some time was spent in starting. They finally got off, Napa a few feet ahead. Twenty One fell back some distance, but gathered up considerably, and in the outcome of the first mile he was about 20 feet behind They continued on their course and kept remarkably close together entirely around, and at the outcome Foster was two lengths ahead of Napa and about 20 feet ahead of Twenty One After the horses had been called up to dismount the riders it was discovered that Twenty One was seriously lame, and the owners requested the privilege of withdrawing him which was granted. This was a great disappointment to the audience Time, 3 53½, First mile 1 54 Foster 1 Napa, 2 Twenty-One, 3

Second heat—At the appointed time the remaining two horses were called to be saddled and after that necessary duty was completed and the riders were mounted the horses were turned and started without the word but were called back and sent off in good style very even, and kept together Foster passed the mile post about a length ahead. The next mile Foster won easily while Napa just saved his distance Time 3 56½ Foster, 1 Napa 2

For trotting horse mare or gelding 2 mile heats 2 in 3 free for all Horse—1st p $200; 2d p $100 3d p $50 H White named b s Starlie J J Welch named b m Mollie Welch B B Acker, b h Eph Maynard

First heat—All got off well together Starlie having the pole Eph ready, Mollie outside Throughout the mare and Eph kept well ahead Starlie falling behind the former crossing the line—first mile in 2 55—neck and neck Starlie losing almost out In the last mile the mare and Eph kept together Starlie gradually losing ground and being virtually out of the race At the top, in crossing Mollie had the best by a length Time of the first two miles 5 49½, the last mile being made in 2 54½ Starlie was declared out

Second heat—Confined to Mollie and Eph the former having the pole They crossed well together, Mollie leading at the half mile, but Eph crawled up here and kept a slight lead Mollie gained again and came across the line a neck ahead making the first mile in 2 56 Mollie still kept the lead, but Eph made it warm for her, the contest being close, the positions alternating At the finish they came in close, Mollie crossing in the lead in by almost a length Time, 5 42 the last mile being made in 2 52

Mollie s race and purse,

This ended the races for the afternoon, and the vast crowd, that had dwindled down after the great running race to half the number now left the scene for other attractions

BASE BALL

The Pioneer and College clubs met at 1 P. M. In the lead the Pioneers fell behind so much that it was impossible for them to regain their lost ground The game closed in the defeat of the Portland club by a score of 42 to 13 The game is hardly worth the reporting in full Play bourn Walker umpired The Colleges play the Aldines to morrow, and, if they win, will get the first premium and the latter will play the Pioneers for second premium The attendance was fair considering the race taking place at the same time.

THE BABY SHOW.

There is nowhere to be found in any of the programmes where a premium is offered for the prettiest baby, so F A Smith offered premiums of photographs for two of the prettiest babies under two years of age and under one There was a great crowd and eleven entries

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING OCTOBER 16 1875

BY SENATOR SHERMAN OF OHIO

The New York Tribune says the influence of Carl Schurz in favor of the Republican ticket in Ohio could scarcely be estimated His great speech on the financial question was printed in English and German, and hundreds of thousands of copies of it were scattered broadcast throughout the country and wherever it went it was received as the ablest discussion of the subject that had appeared Wherever Mr Schurz went in Ohio during the campaign, he met the best audiences that ever assembled to listen to any speaker Thousands flocked to the meetings just to get a sight of him, and in every way it appears he has such a hold upon the hearts of the people as no other man has had for a long time The Democrats did not pretend to answer his argument. Their newspapers did not print his speech, nor comment upon it except to assert he was paid a large amount for going into the campaign, an untruth which they persisted in, after they had been fully informed that not even his expenses were repaid him

Two things conspire to give Mr Schurz the great influence he possesses First, and of course, most important, he thoroughly understands himself on all subjects pertaining to American politics Foreign born, he has been declared by high authority to be the most thoroughly posted man in the United States upon political matters in this country From early manhood the general principles of government as applicable to the American Republic, have been his constant study and he is as familiar with all their various aspects as with the English tongue, in the use of which he has acquired such remarkable skill Secondly, though a Republican, Schurz is not, in the common or partisan acceptation of the term, a politician He acknowledges allegiance to no party organization but reserves to himself the right to act in every case as circumstances shall seem to require. Occupying this position he can afford to be a statesman, while the strict partisan never can The people recognise this fact, and believe in him No doubt Hayes owes more votes than his 4 000 majority to the efforts of this Independent Republican ex Senator

AN ISSUE WANTED

Four thousand Republican majority in Ohio is not quite so good as 40,000 would have been, considering the nature of the issue on which the election hinged, but it is enough to settle the hash with the dilutionists Pennsylvania, in all probability will follow suit, and the inflation nonsense will then be buried too deep for resurrection "Rise-up William Allen," Mr Samuel Carey, and Mr William D Kelley will now retire with their three-sixty-five "incontrovertible" bond scheme, from the public gaze, and the politicians of both the national parties will set their wits at work to devise some issue on which they can differ in 1876 The inflation movement in Ohio was a very godsend to the race of platform makers, as for some parties except the question of who should have the offices and the swag. This currency question relieved them for a while from their perplexity, but the issue has proved to be rather short-lived and the necessity of differing without anything to differ about is again upon the managers It is now but a few short months till the national conventions will meet, and it will be a terrible state of affairs if they are compelled to adopt platforms identical with each other except in the meaningless resolutions that each will adopt pointing with pride to its own past history and with horror to that of its adversary The great want of the times is, something for parties to differ about

EDUCATIONAL NOTES

The Philadelphia Press complains that children are sent to school when too young, and deprecates the blunder of allowing them to bring the school home with them It says: "When the doors of the school house close in the afternoon upon the school children, they should literally close out from them all that pertains to school until the opening next morning A teacher should be a teacher, not simply a mere hearer of recitations. Lessons should be learned and taught at school—never at home The teacher has no right to impose upon parents the most annoying part of her work She has no right to take from the child a single moment of the few hours it has out of school

Gail Hamilton declares in the Independent that she would have the unwieldy and monstrous schools broken into pieces and every pupil relegated to the domain of personal and personal supervision She adds There should be no male principal at the distant nod to any inaccessible summit of a mountain chain of teachers with a salary thrice and four times that of the female subordinates under the mistaken idea that only a man can organize and administer Organization should take its proper place in the rear and teaching should take its proper place at the front and he who can best stimulate and guide the infant mind and heart shall be chosen teacher and shall have an adequate and honorable salary whether he be man or woman As economy is to be consulted, we will consult it not by reducing the salaries of teachers the persons who do the indispensable work and concerning whose character and fitness we cannot be too exacting but by cutting off at one fell swoop the unnecessary stepping-stones, not to say stumbling blocks between the common city and the teachers State Boards should be summarily splintered and our lately invented superintendent of schools would escape annihilation only by the skin of his teeth In our present system he is an agreeable and pleasant person but are we a supernumerary

The following nine sons and suggestions are made by the New England Journal of Education If there is a word in our teachers phraseology which is in danger of becoming a mere cant term it is truth By this matter of good authority the first principle is There must be the well mastered body of truth in the mind It is simply absurd to talk of a good method of presenting a subject, of which one has a good understanding There must be a living, and excited interest in the presentation of that truth A third principle to be kept in mind is All modes or methods are not absolute but relative Absolutely there may be a certain method which alone befits the truth to be presented But the truth has got to be presented through the teachers agency Hence the method is, of necessity relative to the teacher It must be in some effective degree adapted to his individual use. Paradox as it may seem to be, the poorer method may, for the particular teacher, be the better one that is a method less perfect in itself may be the one which for various reasons the teacher can use with the most power Out of this arises the fourth principle Every method must be so recast and so thoroughly digested that it becomes the teachers own Like the truth, the method must not be passively received and laid away to be mechanically brought forth as a mere piece of embalmed lifelessness it must be made a subject of individual thought experiment adaptation

It falls out that those cabinet officers who last week declined to give the name of the coming Secretary of the Interior or else those newspaper people who reported the fact, were guilty of a bit of humbuggery Nobody has told the name of the new Secretary for the reason that nobody knows his name The chances are that the story originated in newspaper row and the cabinet officers referred to were as innocent of declining to violate the confidence of the President as of the possession of his confidence with respect to the proposed appointment And furthermore, the chances are that the President does not know for certain who will succeed Mr. Delano Perhaps it is true as stated this morning that the appointment is delayed to await the answer of a gentleman to whom the office has been tendered

The charges for entrance at the state fair this year have given rise to considerable dissatisfaction The fair lasts six days the charge for a season ticket admitting the holder during the entire time was $2 00, but for a single day the gate fee was $1 00 A single day's admission [illegible] Doubtless the object of this arrangement was to run the season ticket list up to as high a point as possible But it occasioned much criticism, and we think just criticism too The price for the entire six days being fixed at $2 00 that for one day should not have exceeded $1 00 The advantage to the holders of season tickets over holders of single day tickets would have been quite enough at that rate

May be the average moral citizen does not like to see horses run, and declines to countenance the horse race element which predominates in the agricultural fairs, but we noticed Thursday that both the grand stands capable of holding a vast number of people were packed as full as they could be persons paying 25 cents each, while the price named on the tickets they received was 124 cents And besides the crowd in the stands there were still vastly larger crowds occupying the ground at either side of the track Nothing else, nor everything else combined attracts so much attention of the people at the fairs as the races

If the Western Democrats want to carry their inflation movement any further, they will have to do so by splitting off from the Democracy and organizing a side show of their own, for it is now morally certain the national convention of the party next summer will not be carried into that whirlpool The prospects are decidedly flattering for the appearance of a pair of rival Democratic parties in the field next year

The following table shows the vote of Ohio at the various elections from 1867 down

1867	Governor	243 606	241 022	484 227
1868	President	280 922	280 032	559 254

To Proprietors Chemical Paint Company—Gents I had my house in Oakland painted with your paint It was warranted to be good and satisfactory in every respect I was obliged to have the third coat put on to make it look as if it had been really painted and even then I think one good coat of Lead Paint would have given the best a better appearance I think you ought to make up to me the loss I sustained besides the annoyance I felt in having that miserable article laid upon me when so I notified and been promised Hoping to hear from you soon on the subject I remain,

CITY.

How He Lost Wife and Money.—While the train was on the [illegible] Salem last evening, a gentleman had his pocket picked by some one and was quite the loser of $140 and was under the circumstances connected with rather peculiar Our friend, it seems, the fair on Thursday and bet [illegible] cash on the wrong horse,' and lost all his stake He returned Thursday evening considerably with the day's luck However, he resolved to take his chances again, and with the sum of money from a friend left yesterday morning for the grounds the great race came off between Twenty one and Napa, our friend's favorite horse named Luck favored him, and he pocketed $140 as a result of his wagering His spirits rose like the temperature is 90° in the shade, a light heart he took the evening train for Portland He felt merry as a lark, and as full as a cricket in high grass, for he had not only doubled all he had borrowed from his friend but had in his pocket $140—he placed in a purse for safe keeping put it in the left pocket of his pantaloons So satisfied with this result was our friend, that he scarcely noticed the loss of its precious contents a second time, but coming down After reaching the ground he began to relate to a number of his friends his unlucky and yet how lucky he had been in order to prove his words, he put his hand deep down into his left pocket and drew forth not the yellow metal in triumph, but to his astonishment his purse. In the exchange he missed his purse. The accommodating gentleman (?) of the fraternity had quietly taken the purse, and in a fit of mental abstraction, while congratulating himself on his luck in betting on horses would but feed the mental state when he was made aware of his loss He thinks that there is no use in this cold and cheerless world now, and that eight-and forty hours ago

SOCIABLE—WOODEN WEDDING. The issue of the Bloomfield, N J, Times contains an account of a sociable given in honor of [illegible] with a wooden wedding" on the evening of the fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr Bradford pastor of the Congregational church at Montclair Mr Bradford is remembered, acted as temporary pastor of the Congregational church of Portland several months last year during the absence of Mr Eaton, and during that time endeared to the congregation [illegible] the event the paper says "The house was fine and the gathering large. In the character of the culture and refinement of the company it bore the aspect of a delightful social gathering large and loving family A wreath of evergreens and flowers was suspended in one of the large rooms of the church The marriage ceremony was repeated, we were too late to witness it, reverend, though youthful groom, and lovely bride, without the semblance of a mistake, and mainly care still stood beneath the wedding bell as observed of all observers Rev Mr Morgan, who had been selected to perform the ceremony, then stepped forward, and in the presence of the congregation, in a few brief and felicitous impromptu speeches related the happy pair. He alluded to the harmony and union existing between the pastor and people and among the members of the congregation, and closed with an expression of the earnest wishes for the future happiness of pastor and wife, and the love of each other, in token of which he asked them to place in his hands a wallet containing the voluntary and united offerings of the people"

REV FREDERICK CRANG. This gentleman, who arrived in Astoria a few weeks ago, and assumed the pastorate of the Congregational church of that place, has been induced to accept a unanimous call extended to him by the members, will exchange pulpits with Rev J D Eaton, pastor of the Congregational church of this city, to-morrow We are informed that Mr Crang is a graduate of Oxford university, England, and was formerly a minister of the Established church of England, at one time a dean of Winchester cathedral, being able to endorse, on [illegible] their fullest extent, some of the views held by that church Mr Crang resigned his position as minister of the Congregational Association of Iowa and Missouri, and has been laborer in that body for many years in the states of Iowa and Missouri, and came to the coast at the call to Astoria, believing that the change of climate would be beneficial to his health, which he felt was being impaired by the severity of the winters in the east, and with little chance of recuperation while he continued to assume the arduous duties which devolved upon him in the extensive field of labor which he had under his charge, embracing not less than twenty churches in Missouri, two of which he was instrumental in the means of organizing Since his arrival in Portland he has become familiar with his family in Astoria, has left many warm friends there His congregation in this city has gradually increased, and by the many who have had the pleasure of hearing him he is said to be a very able and eloquent preacher

A RICH LEDGE.—A gentleman who arrived in Portland on Thursday evening from John Day City informed us that a rich quartz ledge has recently been discovered in that place, which is of great extent and unusual richness Lately a joint stock company has been organized to work and develop the ledge, and at present are engaged in [illegible] Thirty tons of quartz have already been taken from the lode, the average yield of which yields $10,000 per ton The rock is now being crushed in a mill on the way to The Dalles, and will be shipped on wagons. From that point it will be shipped to this place, and thence to San Francisco by steamer It is the intention of the company to realize a sum of not less than thirty tons of rock sufficient to keep a large quartz mill, ship it to the scene of the machinery up, and contribute to the rapid development of the discoveries Should the [illegible] fairly a big calculation, but if the yield of the rock is not exaggerated the proceeds will accomplish all that the company hope to do

ACCIDENT.—The cook, a Chinaman employed on the ship Rosie Wall, while going down the hatchway from the deck to the lower hold on Thursday afternoon, missed his footing and fell to the bottom, picked up unconscious being severely injured His head and face were badly cut, but otherwise considerably bruised The accident is the second accident of a similar character that has occurred on board, that the ship has been in port About a week ago a sailor on board while engaged in hoisting ballast, fell, down the hatchway, and turned a somersault in falling, alighting on his feet Though no bones were broken the jar and force of the fall injured him severely that he has been unable to work ever since

THE OREGONIAN'S WHEAT CABLE. We wish to explain to our readers the meaning of the telegrams we are receiving from our London correspondents of the price of wheat in that market are ex ship at Liverpool, and not for floating cargoes from Oregon to the United Kingdom, which are always sold at 6d to 9d per bushel less than the selling price of the day at Liverpool, will in future quote to our readers the price of wheat first the actual selling price of Oregon wheat on the spot and second the price being offered in Liverpool for Oregon wheat on passage to the United Kingdom This will be the way our readers will understand the Liverpool market and prices from day to day

How He Lost Wife and Left A Fix.—Beside the train was on the way down from Roseburg last evening, a gentleman of this city whose name we did not learn had his pocket picked by some adroit thief and was made the loser of $140 in coin. The circumstances connected with the theft are rather peculiar. Our friend it seems went to the fair on Thursday, and bet all his available cash on the wrong horse, and consequently lost all his stake. He returned to Portland on Thursday evening considerably disheartened with the day's luck. However he concluded to take his chances again and borrowing a sum of money from a friend took the train yesterday morning for the grounds. When the great race came off between Foster Frisby and Napa, our friend chose wisely and plunked his coin down on the first named horse. Luck favored him, and our hero coolly pocketed $140 as the result of wagering. His spirits rose like mercury when the temperature is 90° in the shade and with a light heart he took the evening train for Portland. He felt merry as a lark and cheerfully sat in a cracket in high grass for now he could pay his friend all he had borrowed and still have a handsome pile left. The sum he won he placed in a purse, and for safe keeping, put it in the left pocket of his trousers. So satisfied with the result of the day was our friend, that he scarcely gave the purse or its precious contents a second thought while descending down. After reaching the city he began to relate to a number of his friends how unlucky and yet how lucky he had been and in order to prove his words, thrust his hand deep down into his left pocket to clutch the yellow metal in triumph when, lo! presto change! he missed his purse. Some accommodating gentleman [?] of the light fingered fraternity had quietly taken the purse during a fit of mental abstraction, while our hero was congratulating himself on his good fortune. To intimate that he is disgusted with fairs and betting on horses would but feebly express his mental state when he was made aware of his loss. He thinks that there is less honesty in this cold and cheerless world now than he did eight and forty hours ago.

Social—Wooden Wedding.—In a late issue of the Bloomfield, N J Record we find an account of a sociable given in connection with the "wooden wedding" on the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the marriage of Rev Mr. Bradford, pastor of the Congregational church at Montclair. Mr Bradford, it will be remembered, acted as temporary pastor of the Congregational church of Portland for several months last year, during the absence of Rev Mr Eaton, and during that time became much endeared to the congregation. In alluding to the event, the paper says: "The evening was like all the gathering large including much of the culture and refinement of Montclair. It bore the aspect of a delightful reunion of a large and loving family. A wedding arch of evergreens and flowers was tastefully constructed in one of the large parlors of the church. The marriage ceremony if it was repeated, we were too late to witness, but the reverend, though youthful groom, with his lovely bride, without the semblance of a custody care still stood beneath the arch—the observed of all observers. Mr Chas C Morgan, who had been selected for the occasion, then stepped forward, and, as the mouth piece of the congregation, in a most graceful piece of the congregation, in a most graceful and felicitous impromptu speech, congratulated the happy pair. He alluded also to the harmony and union existing between pastor and people and among the members of the church, and closed with an eloquent expression of the earnest wishes of all for the happiness of pastor and wife, as well as for each other, in token of which he was directed to place in his hands a wallet containing $500, the voluntary and united offering of a loving people."

Rev Reverdy Cranc.—This reverend gentleman, who arrived in Astoria about six weeks ago, and accepted the pastorate of the Congregational church of that town in answer to a unanimous call extended him by the members, will exchange pulpits with the Rev J D Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational church of this city, to-morrow. We are informed that Mr. Crane is a graduate of Oxford university, England, and was ordained a minister of the Established church, being at one time a dean of Winchester cathedral. Not being able to conform, on investigation, to their fullest extent, some of the doctrines of that church, Mr. Crane resigned his office and has for many years been an honored member of the Congregational Association of America. The reverend gentleman has been a successful laborer in that body for many years, in the states of Iowa and Illinois, and accepted the call to Astoria, believing that the change of climate would be beneficial to his health, which he felt was being impaired, with very little chance of reputation while he continued to assume the arduous duties imposed upon him in the extensive field he occupied, he having charge of not less than three churches in Missouri, two of which he was the means of organizing. Since his arrival with his family in Astoria, he has made many warm friends there. His congregations have gradually increased, and by those who have heard him he is said to be an earnest, able and eloquent preacher.

A Rich Lode.—A gentleman who arrived in Portland on Thursday evening from Canyon City informed us that a gold bearing ledge has recently been discovered near that place, which is of great extent and fabulous richness. Lately a joint stock company was organized to work and develop these discoveries. Thirty tons of quartz have already been taken from this lode, the average assay of which yields $16,000 per ton. This rock is now on the way to The Dalles, being hauled on wagons. From that point the quartz will be shipped to this place, and then sent to San Francisco by steamer. It is the calculation of the company to realize a sum of money from thirty tons of rock sufficient to purchase a large quartz mill, ship it to the mines, set the machinery up, and contribute far toward the development of the discoveries. This is certainly a big calculation, but if the average yield of the rock is not exaggerated, the total proceeds will accomplish all that the company hope to do.

Accident.—The cook, a Chinaman employed on the ship Rosie Welt accidently fell down the hatchway from between decks to lower hold on Thursday afternoon. He was picked up unconscious, being stunned by the fall. His head and face were badly cut and he was otherwise considerably injured. This is the second accident of a similar nature that has occurred on board that vessel since she has been in port. About a week ago a young man, a sailor on board while assisting in hoisting ballast, fell down the hatchway, turned a somersault in falling and lit square on his feet. Though no bones were broken, the jar and force of the fall injured his limbs so severely that he has been in the hospital ever since.

The Oregonian's Wheat Cables from Europe.—We wish to explain to our readers that the telegrams we are receiving from our Liverpool correspondents of the prices of Oregon wheat in it at market are ex warehouse at Liverpool, and not for floating cargoes in transit from Oregon to the United Kingdom which are always sold at 3d to 6d per central less than the selling price of the day at Liverpool. We will in future quote in our weekly telegrams first, the actual selling price of the day of Oregon wheat on the spot and second the price being offered in Liverpool for Oregon cargoes in passage to the United kingdom. In this way our readers will understand the wheat market and prices both ways.

Song Service.—The following programme will be rendered at Ore Jung Theater Sunday evening at 7 30 o'clock at the song service conducted by Prof J B McChesney:

1—Anthem "Hosanna in the Highest" Family
2—Song Only an Armor Bearer" Miss Lea
3—Chorus "The Angel's Song" Family
4—Song Two Little Shoes" Mrs McChesney
5—Kindergarten Song "March" Kindergarten Family
6—Song "If Pops were Ready" Master Hugh
7—Song "Rock me to sleep Mother" Miss Beal
8—Song "Save the Boy" Mrs McChesney
9—Song "Little Travelers" Family
10—Chorus "The Golden Sheaves" Congregation

Golden Wedding.—A very pleasant affair in the marriage line occurred at the residence of Albert and Mrs M A Mitchell of this city last evening (Oct 15) on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedded life. A few friends had been invited to share the festivities of a reunion and wish the happy couple many more joyful seasons on this side the dark river. The hymenical knot of so long ago was re-tied by an appropriate ceremony. Rev D J Pierce, pastor of the Baptist church of which the aged bridegroom is a deacon and a table bountifully provided with delicacies for the inner man was the attention of the guests and bridal pair. The bridal cake was served upon plates from which the venerable pair ate at their first wedding feast in Eastern Massachusetts and the silver snuffers with the brides virgin name was used for the fiftieth year. Mrs Mitchell appeared in the silk embroidered socks and slippers of auld lang syne in which she stood at blushing eighteen to take the nuptial vow. After supper it was remarked for the first time that the three aged deacons of the Baptist church were all present with the wives of their youth each having lived with his wife over 44 years and the pastor congratulates himself upon having three such advisers who so well fill out the injunction of Paul to Timothy. "Let the deacons be the husbands of one wife ruling their children and their own houses well for they that have used the office of deacon well purchase to themselves a good degree." Any one who knows of Mrs Mitchell's earnest efforts in the temperance cause would naturally expect no wine at the golden wedding but the fact is significant that although in their youth a cold water wedding was hardly thought in style yet believing any one to be in danger who is tippling they resolutely refused to have liquors served at their wedding in 1825. Five children have been gathered around their family board, all of whom are still living.

Serious Illness.—We regret to announce the serious illness of Dr Geo F Cooper who for several years was medical director of the department of the Columbia. Dr Cooper about a year ago was transferred to the barracks at Benicia, but owing to the precarious state of his health he has recently been granted a leave of absence. When last heard from he was in southern California but his health was so poor as to be the occasion of grave apprehensions among his friends. The doctor has numerous friends in this city who will sincerely regret to learn of his illness.

Bradley's Injuries.—Tom Bradley, who fell from the express train on Thursday evening near the Labish bridge, did not sustain as serious injuries as was at first supposed. He struck on his head and face and as the train was moving at a rapid rate he was considerably bruised. No bones were broken which may be regarded as almost miraculous considering the speed at which the train was moving and the manner in which he fell. Yesterday morning Bradley was brought down to this city. He will probably be out again in a few days.

Schooner Portland.—This vessel Captain Grige, master having about completed her cargo here, was towed down the river yesterday afternoon. The Portland took away about 550 tons of freight—one hundred tons of which was wheat and the remainder flax seed. At St. Helens a deck load of lumber is to be received when the vessel will be ready to go to sea.

Rectorship Declined.—Rev R. D. Nevius, of the Protestant Episcopal church, who is engaged in missionary work for that denomination in Eastern Oregon has recently received a call to the assistant rectorship of the Cathedral church, Indianapolis. We understand that he has declined to accept the call.

Critical Operation.—On Thursday Dr R. B Wilson, of this city, assisted by Drs. Watkins and Strong, performed in a skillful manner a critical surgical operation on the person of Mrs E. A. Willis of the Dalles. The lady will return home to day.

SHIPPING ITEMS.

A note from Astoria, written on Thursday gives the following shipping items:

Ship McNear finished loading to day and is ready for sea.

Ship Lanarkshire left in tow of Annie Stewart for Portland to day.

Ship Rosie Welt commenced loading at Farmers' dock to day.

Ship Florida has her cargo alongside and will finish loading to morrow.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

In the absence of Police Judge Adams Jos J Reilly acting justice of the peace disposed of the following cases:

Mrs John Lawlor and her daughter Mary were arraigned the one charged with assault and battery on a child and the other for breaking windows in the house of her neighbor. Both parties pleaded not guilty, when the case was continued by consent of all parties until 1 o'clock this afternoon.

IN PROBATE

In the matter of the guardianship of Frederick Krispe an insane person. Dr Kochler appointed guardian bonds fixed at $2,000.

Adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Do not spend your money for bad washing. The Warwick collar looks better than linen and does not need washing.

What is the use of wearing a plain and poor fitting suit of clothes when you can purchase an elegant one just as easily. All you have to do is to give Beck & Waldman a call at the corner of Front and Washington streets. They have just received an immense stock of clothing. If you want to buy your boy or yourself a nice suit there is the place to go. They can satisfy you as to fit quality and price.

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY

Pupils entering the week after the State Fair will pay only for the last half of the term. A partial reorganization of classes will afford a good opportunity for beginning studies.

Adams & Owens, Front street between Taylor and Yamhill, give mechanical attention to your bathing which work wonders in curing rheumatism and other chronic diseases.

The first invoice of fall and winter goods arrived on the last steamer and are now arranged in order so that JOS. KOHN'S numerous customers can call at once all that is new and attractive in the clothing line. The styles displayed are the very latest in the market and I must say unquestionably. Fresh arrivals every steamer selected personally for the trade by Mr. Kohn who knows just what will please his patrons. Call to-day and make your purchases.

Personal.—Mr M Rosenblatt of 79 Front street returned last evening on the John L Stephens from San Francisco with a large stock of Clothing etc for gentlemen and boys wear. His stock is worthy of inspection by all who desire a first class article be sure and call on him and receive the number.

Beck & Waldman have filled largely in their stock of Clothing, during the past week. Mr Beck has selected many new and attractive styles and forward the first purchases which are really the best to be seen in Portland. The variety of styles that is to be seen in Portland. The variety of styles for fall suits are numerous and the parent should fail to examine the arrivals. Take your boy and have him fitted. The firm have an immense stock for the fall and winter and offer special inducements all.

These meetings by the laymen are exceedingly interesting and all who can will do well to attend.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Phelps dramatic troupe which has played to crowded houses during the present week at Salem will return to this city and open a short season at New Mark t theater on Monday evening. The programme for the opening night will consist of the Lancashire Lass and the ludicrous farce of His Last Legs.

Financially and in point of attendance the grand operatic and ballad concert given last evening at Masonic Hall by Miss Fannie Marston the young and beautiful California songstress assisted by volunteer talent of this city was successful in the highest degree. As fashionable and appreciative an audience as is often seen was assembled in the hall. Although the programme was quite short comprising only eleven selections, the pieces rendered were very excellent and much good musical taste was displayed in the arrangement. Those who heard Miss Marston last evening are doubtless willing to admit that she is all that has been claimed for her by the best critics—that she is one of the finest singers on the coast. The fact that Miss Marston won and carried with her last evening, all within the sound of her voice is a credit to her talent and a compliment to her vocal powers. On each appearance she was enthusiastically applauded and encored once and sometimes oftener at the close of each song. She has few equals in singing "Comin thro' the Rye" and though she excels in the most fashionable gilt edged and high toned drawing room quaver operatic music it is in singing such correct sentimental songs as "Way down upon the Swanee river," "Old folks at Home" and "Kathleen Mavourneen" that she reaches the hearts of her audience. In the course of the evening Miss Marston sang a cavatina from "Ernani" "Waltz Brilliant Red, White and Blue" several popular ballads and concluded with a grand scene and cavatina from "Adilia." Several select pieces were excellently rendered during the evening by the Amphion quartette club and also a song—"Alsace et Lorraine" by Mr Van Burden. Those who attended the concert express themselves highly delighted with the entertainment afforded. Before her departure from the city we hope to have the pleasure of hearing Miss Marston again.

An Unanswerable Argument

The strongest argument which can be urged against the individuality of any existing evil or medicine and more destroying is its success and equitable performance. It is an irrefutable fact that nearly every person in the community and certainly all business men have used with the very best effect at some time during their lives one or more of Hall's Hair Renewer. Every bottle will accomplish precisely what is claimed for it. Every lady who has used it will accord it praise. Every druggist in the land will recommend it. Every barber will use it. Every hair dresser will keep it. Every person of intelligence will have it. Every one who has used it will speak highly of it. Every one who has not used it will do well to procure it. Every one who has used it will speak highly of it. Every one who has not used it will do well to procure it.

IMPORTANT to those by the Medical profession. Dr Wm HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS can stop a cough in a single night. Cures all throat and chest troubles. LOOK FOR Dr WM HALL'S BALSAM. Sold by all druggists.

An Article of True Merit.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are the most popular article in their line in the world. Throat Diseases and Coughs and this popularity is the result of real merit.

THREATENED TROUBLE WITH INDIANS.

Several times mention has been made of the opposition of the Indians at the Umatilla reservation to the work of opening a road and building a line of telegraph through the grounds included in the limits of the reservation. The line has been completed as far as Baker City, and in constructing it through Walla Walla it is found necessary to cross the limits of the reservation. For some reason the Indians are bitterly opposed to the work going forward on the ground that they regard it as an encroachment. Justly considering the magnetic telegraph one of the most potent levers of civilization these noble red men of the primeval forest think they have seen quite enough of American civilization to suit them. They therefore have arrayed themselves in direct and open hostility and declare that not a pole shall be planted or a wire stretched across the Illahee dominated over by Lo Sam. When trouble was at first mentioned the department at Washington was notified of the opposition of the Indians. Orders were forwarded at once authorizing the construction of the line as proposed through the reservation lands. But it appears from recent events that the Indians are up and in arms, and do not propose to regard the instructions given by the government. The following dispatch received here yesterday from Walla Walla will serve to indicate the spirit of resistance among the Indians:

J McManus who is just in from Weston reports that the Indians to the number of 300 or 400 armed came to the camp of the men engaged in building the new road and telegraph line over the Blue mountains, last night and drove them off threatening to kill them unless they left at once, which they did having no arms with which to defend themselves and leaving all their tools and provisions.

Immediately on receipt of the telegram, Mr Pinkt Burr, superintendent of construction, who is now in this city, went to the headquarters of the department of Columbia and apprised Col H Clay Wood, who is acting temporarily as commander of the department during the absence of Gen Howard, of the state of affairs. Gen Howard, who is now at the Dalles, en route for Portland, was notified by telegraph of the condition of things. He sent a dispatch at once to Col Elmer Otis, who has charge of the troops at Walla Walla authorizing that officer to protect the men engaged in opening the road and building the line from the threatened attack at all hazards. This may be regarded as the termination of the anticipated difficulty, as the Indians will scarcely have the hardihood to openly resist the military power of the government.

A PRACTICAL LOVER

It was quite late when I heard that Ned Stone was a very great deal below par. He was a broker in the city. He had been a very poor man at one time, and I knew that he had to work very hard. His industry had in the end however, met its due reward. At middle age he was comfortably circumstanced. When he announced to his friends therefore that he thought of taking to himself a wife it was thought generally that the step he meditated was a prudent one. And when he further unfolded the fact that he was an office of his friend to one Georgiana Warren the daughter of a wealthy merchant and that his offer had been accepted by the lady we of course hastened to tender our heartiest congratulations on that occasion.

Ned Stone spoke of the matter his own simple sober way.

Well you know I'm getting on he said, and if I am to marry it's about time I should think of setting about it. You're very kind I think I shall be very happy in fact I have no doubt of it as happy as a fellow has a right to expect to be. One has no right to expect too much of course. But I'm quite fond in my way of this Georgiana Warren and I think that she in her way is fond of me. She is not of a young or too old age to look for, nor yet too plain. She is sensible and genteel enough and I dare say we shall get on pretty well together. I shouldn't make a very good sort of a husband I perhaps I'm not very fond of old Warren the father and perhaps he isn't very fond of me. But I don't know as that matters much. I dare say we shall understand each other better by and by. meantime I must try and make the best of the old man's humor and of mine as I can't avoid. And it seems that the old fellow would be no fonder of anybody else who might want to marry his daughter than he is of me. You see its our affair—Georgiana's and mine—and not his, though its hard to make him see it in that light. But I dare say it will come out right in the end. That's what I tell Georgiana when she talks up with rather gloomy views about her father's temper. She has good sense and I think looks at the matter very much as I do only of course she can't help feeling that he is her father, whereas thank goodness he ain't mine.

It will be seen that Ned Stone is not a lover to 'sigh like a furnace.' As to writing a woful ballad to his mistress's eye brows I don't fancy he could have accomplished such a feat even if his life depended on his doing so. The thermometer of his love stood at temperate, with no tendency toward an upward rise. The marks of love, as they are generally understood were not discernible upon him.

He never said a word as to the agitated state of his breast, nor to the excitement of his feelings. He did not regard Miss Warren as an angel or a goddess. Probably he would have been the first to contradict any allegation that might have been made to the effect that she was anything of the kind. Miss Warren appeared to him what she seemed to everybody else—a nice, sensible English girl.

I called upon Stone one evening. He was alone. He looked a little grave, and held a small sealed packet. We discussed various indifferent subjects, then I inquired concerning Miss Georgiana.

Oh, haven't you heard?" he answered. But of course you couldn't have heard. The affair is off. Our engagement has come to an end."

You don't really mean that?' I asked in surprise.

Yes the things 'broken off as people say. It's a hard job, and I'm sorry for it, but it can't be helped."

Had the lady resented his serenity and discharged him? I asked myself.

As though he had heard the question he went on. "It's the old man's doings. I hope he is satisfied now. He's the most unreasonable and disagreeable old fellow I ever had the misfortune to meet.'

But what did he do?"

'We fell out about the settlement—that was where the hitch arose. I'm sure I did all I could to please him. I gave up condition after condition, quite in opposition to the advice of my solicitor. I told him to settle what money he proposed to settle on his daughter—it wasn't much, after all—just as he pleased—I didn't want to touch one half penny of it. He might settle it, I told him just as strictly as ever he pleased or he might settle nothing at all upon her if he liked that better. It was his daughter I wanted and not his money. And for my part I'd take care my wife never came to want. I undertook to insure my life for a large amount, and to assign the policy to trustees for her benefit in my death, covenanting, of course, to have the premiums regularly paid to keep up the insurance in the regular way. I thought that a fair arrangement but it did not content him.

He wanted to tie my hands completely. He hadn't a high profit of confidence in me. He gave me credit for no sort of affection for his daughter. He insisted that any money that I in future might become possessed of I should covenant into a settlement. It is absurd. Of course I couldn't consent to it. I had business to consider. Of course my wife and children—if I had any—would reap the benefit as much as I should. I told Georgiana exactly how the matter stood. She's of age. I asked her whether she'd marry me without the old man's consent. Poor girl! she was in an awful way. But she did not care to do that. She shrank from offending her father so there's no help for it—the thing's broken off and I'm not to be married. It seems—this time, at any rate.

He spoke rather sorrowfully but still without the slightest trace of ill temper. I endeavored to console him in a common sort of a way.

He opened a small packet he had been holding in his hand.

This is pleasant, he said, quietly, 'here are all my letters to Georgiana. Ah! and here is a little present I gave her, sent back to me.'

There were not many letters. Their contents I could guess little enough like conventional love letters, probably like unecstatic compositions yet simple and to the purpose, and practical enough. The present was a ring—a large diamond heavily set in pure gold just the valuable simple substantial present which I could have fancied Ned Stone selected for his betrothed.

I suppose they'll expect me to send back Georgiana's letters to her.

Undoubtedly.

It is the usual way when engagements come to an end?'

Certainly, it's the usual way.

He rubbed his chin and seemed to reflect a little.

Have a cigar he said presently, and let's talk about something else. This is not the most agreeable subject in the world. Tell me what you have been doing with yourself lately?'

We fell to talking about this that and the other. Presently I went away. As I went away, he said quietly. I think I shall try to see Georgiana once more, for a particular reason.

I did not ask what the particular reason was and he did not tell me.

A few nights afterward he saw me again. He was at no time subject to much change of mood or at any rate self in betrayed any variation of that kind. But it struck me that anything he was in better spirits than usual.

We had not met for a short while, I fancy, the other night that day appointment was he kept off?

I explained that I had not mentioned for a particular good reason. That I'd seen any person with whom it would interest to be informed of the fact.

It's just as well he said, because the engagement isn't to be kept off or rather it is on again.

Indeed! I'm very glad to hear it.

I told you I should try and see Georgiana again. Well I knew that she often went with her father and other relations to the Zoological gardens on Sunday. So I went to the Zoological. I soon discovered her with Warren and a lot of other people. She saw me and understood by my sign that I wanted to speak on the quiet. Well she lingered behind a little, and when the rest of the party went to look at the kangaroos she slipped with me into the snake house. She looked a little frightened and the tears were standing in her eyes.

So I put my arms around her it didn't matter to me who saw you know—and told her there was nothing to be alarmed at and that I only wanted to say a word or two. I told her that I was sorry that I had not sent back her letters as I expected to have done but the plain fact of the matter was I couldn't do it.

You love me still then Ned she said.

Of course I do Georgiana I said who's been telling you I don't?"

She began crying bitterly.

Come Georgie I said, "let us get married whether papa likes it or not only say the word.

She didn't say a word. Poor child. She couldn't speak for crying and she looked at me and gave me such a little nod and then she began laughing through her tears. It was the prettiest sight you ever saw. Of course I kissed her and then I turned and who should be standing close to my side but old Warren.

Georgia gave a little scream and then tried to make believe that we were looking at the bear contractor. But of course that didn't work so I said to old Warren in a cheerly sort of way, and putting out my hand cheerfully. Mr Warren Georgia and I are going to be married that's quite settled. But you and I may as well be friends all the same. We'd much rather have your consent than not. Suppose you give it to us?'

He was so astonished that before I think he knew quite what he was doing he'd taken my hand with all his friends standing around and looking on. Of course he could not go back after that. And—and so the thing was settled.

I congratulated him heartily. Presently I said by way of chance

How lucky it was that you didn't send back Miss Warren's letters.'

My dear fellow that was what I wanted to explain to her, I couldn't send them back.

You found them dear to you?'

At last, then he had been betrayed into a feeling of romance.

Not at all he exclaimed. I could not send them back because I hadn't kept them. I destroyed them.

Destroyed them?

Yes what was the good of them? I only keep business letters. they're regularly docketed at my office. But for the rest I made them into pipe lights.

You didn't tell her that?'

No—I hadn't time. I never arrived at an explanation about the letters.

Then, my dear Stone, let me entreat you whatever you do, don't give Miss Warren your explanation about the matter.'

Why shouldn't I?

Don't you see? She thought you didn't send back her letters for a sentimental reason because they were so dear to you that you could not possibly part with them and so, in point of fact that little misunderstanding of hers led to the re establishment of your love affair.'

Do you think so? he said amusingly.

But if Georgiana made any mistake about the matter I think that I am bound to set her right.

My dear Stone take my advice for fear of accident, set her right after the wedding ceremony, not before.'

Whether or not he took my advice I am not aware. He was married in due course of time to Miss Warren and I know that lady was heard to declare that she married the best husband in the world.
